

GREETINGS FROM SENATOR LINDA EVANS PARLETTE

Weekly E-mail Update

WASHINGTON STATE 12TH LEGISLATIVE DISTRICT

February 25, 2005

Hello again from sunny Olympia. The weather here continues to be a pleasant surprise. It makes me feel like I'm home in Wenatchee. The 59th Legislature has just completed its seventh week of the 2005 session. Week eight starts on Monday, February 28.

ELECTION CHALLENGE UPDATE

Chelan County Superior Court Judge John Bridges signed an order on Feb. 18 confirming that the legal challenge to the governor's election will move forward. The Republican Party asked for an April 4 trial date, but Judge Bridges said he won't set a trial date until both sides have finished their discovery – the legal term for fact-finding. He did not rule on the question of what exactly the Republican Party must prove. The Democrat Party has been pushing for a ruling that the Republican Party prove how each illegal vote was cast. On Feb. 23, the Republican Party announced it had identified 1,108 felons who voted without having their civil rights restored – 884 of them in King County. The Democrat Party is saying they should be hauled into court and asked how they voted. These felons could say anything they want. Ironically, this would put the outcome of the election entirely in the hands of criminals. There is no other reasonable, rational choice but for Judge Bridges to declare the election null and void so a revote for governor can take place.

ELECTION REFORM UPDATE – NEW BILL FILED

So far, there is a total of 27 election reform bills introduced in the Senate this year. The deadline to pass Senate bills from the Senate policy committees is March 2. The deadline to approve Senate measures from the Senate Transportation and Ways and Means committees is March 7. Here is a look at the latest election reform bill in the Senate:

Senate Bill 6006 – making it unlawful for a person or organization collecting voter registration application forms to photocopy or otherwise replicate those forms. This measure also makes it unlawful for any election official to mark a blank voter registration form with the purpose of identifying the individual or organization to which the forms are given. This bill is in the Government Operations and Elections Committee.

BUDGET TIDBITS...JUST THE FACTS

State Employee Automatic Salary Increases: This year, if the negotiated raises under the new collective bargaining agreement are approved, some state employees will receive a 15.6 percent salary increase over the next two years. For more information, go to www.src.wa.gov and click on "Budget Tidbits...just the facts, 7th Edition." Budget Tidbits is written each week by Sen. Joe Zarelli, ranking Republican on the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

BILL PROVIDES CIVIL RELIEF FOR SERVICE MEMBERS RETURNING FROM OVERSEAS

The very nature of military service often compromises the ability of service members to fulfill their financial obligations and to assert many of their legal rights. Congress has long recognized the need for protective legislation. During the Civil War, Congress enacted an absolute moratorium on civil actions brought against federal soldiers and sailors. In 2003, Congress enacted the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act (SCRA) which completely revised the 1940 Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act.

Under the SCRA, members of the military can receive a 90-day stay from potential liability or lawsuits. Senate Bill 6028 creates a 180-day stay in Washington state, recognizing the many active duty personnel and reservists from Washington who have been called to duty in Iraq. This bill is in the Senate Judiciary Committee.

A STATE INCOME TAX?

DEMOCRATS INTRODUCE A STATE INCOME TAX PLAN. The Legislature may on its own impose a 1 percent income tax, but anything greater or a graduated system, must be put to the voters of the state. The current Democrat measure, sponsored by Sen. Rosa Franklin and co-sponsored by Sens. Adam Kline and Jeanne Kohl-Welles, is an amendment to the Washington State Constitution and does require a vote of the people – even though Washington voters have rejected income tax proposals eight times since 1934. Senate Joint Resolution 8211 amends the state Constitution to allow a graduated income tax. It would take a two-thirds majority of the House and Senate to move this measure to the November ballot. A simple majority vote of the people is required for passage. The eight “no” votes by the people against an income tax in the past have been: 56.6 percent; 77.8 percent; 66.9 percent; 66.3 percent; 68.4 percent; 77 percent; 66.8 percent and 66.2 percent.

This bill is in the Senate Ways and Means Committee, which is one of the committees I serve on.

RECENT POLL SHOWS 57% OF WASHINGTON VOTERS DON'T BELIEVE STATE GOVERNMENT SHOULD RAISE TAXES FOR ANY REASON

A poll of 500 voters across Washington in January of this year asked if people agreed or disagreed with this statement: “State government should live within its 7 percent revenue growth and should not raise taxes for any purpose.” In every area polled —except Seattle— the majority agreed: 64 percent in non-Seattle King County; 57 percent in Kitsap/Pierce/Snohomish counties; 54 percent in other parts of Western Washington; and 66 percent in Eastern Washington. By party, 70 percent of Republicans agreed; 67 percent of independents agreed; and 42 percent of Democrats agreed. The poll was conducted by the public opinion research firm Moore Information, and has a 95 percent confidence level. Despite the fact we continually hear the word “crisis” in the media, I believe we can put out an operating budget without raising taxes, and I’m working to help do that. I’ll elaborate more on this in next week’s update.

DEMOCRATS’ POLITICAL “RETRO-BUTION” BILL GETS HEARING

Retrospective rating (“retro”) is an optional financial incentive program offered by the state Department of Labor and Industries (L&I) to increase workplace safety by refunding part of an employer’s industrial insurance premiums for creating a safer workplace. To be in a group plan, a company must belong to a sponsoring association that maintains a contract with L&I to administer the group program. Participation in a group retro program is voluntary and every industry is served by several retro groups. There is healthy competition.

One sponsoring group is the Building Industry Association of Washington (BIAW). Since the 2004 general election, the BIAW has used some of its funds to identify illegal votes and promote a revote for governor petition. Democrats, backed strongly by unions, have introduced a bill that limits the use of a sponsoring group’s funds to administrative costs or to be retained as reserves to meet any assessments made by the L&I.

The summary of this bill is as follows: “Provides for substantially improving worker safety, accident prevention, and worker outcomes through the department of labor and industries' retrospective rating program.” However, Senate Bill 5842 does not improve worker safety. This bill is in the Senate Labor, Commerce, Research and Development Committee, and was given a public hearing last night.

25 AG GROUPS JOIN TOGETHER, PRESENT LIST OF PRIORITIES TO LEGISLATURE

The groups' goal is to provide legislators with a roadmap to what it will take to preserve and enhance the viability of one of the largest sectors of economic activity and employment in Washington state. Priorities on the list range from livestock identification to minimum wage reform and farm worker housing. Water is always a vital issue for agriculture and may be even more significant this year if predictions of a drought equal to the one in 1977 prove to be true. Washington's agricultural industry accounts for one in 10 jobs and about 60 percent of the exports shipped through the Port of Seattle. With more than 250 commodities, Washington is second only to California in terms of diversity of agriculture.

The often unmet needs of agriculture, and the unique historical, cultural and economic characteristics of Eastern Washington compared to Western Washington, have led to many attempts to create a 51st state east of the Cascade Mountains. Even before Washington became a state, the territorial legislature considered dividing Eastern and Western Washington. This year's request to Congress for a 51st state is Senate Joint Memorial 8009. The measure was given a public hearing in the Senate Government Operations and Elections Committee, but will not be brought up for a vote according to the committee chairman. Sen. Bob Morton, the prime sponsor of SJM 8009, has sponsored similar measures in previous sessions to express the frustration felt by so many Eastern Washington residents.

WASHINGTON STUDENTS CAN EARN SCHOLARSHIPS WITH WASL PERFORMANCE

Students who perform at the highest levels in math and science on the Washington Assessment of Student Learning (WASL) may become eligible for scholarships at the DigiPen Institute of Technology in Redmond. The first scholarships are to be awarded to students entering the institute in fall 2005. The scholarships will cover 50 percent of total tuition costs -- $13,800 for a two-year program and $26,000 for a four-year program. The institute offers two-, four- and six-year degree programs in game development, computer engineering, 3D computer animation and related areas.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION ACTIVATES NEW TRAVEL TIME SIGNS ON I-5, I-405 AND I-90

New travel time signs will allow travelers to know in an instant how long it will take them to get to Seattle or Bellevue from surrounding communities. Research shows that drivers who have information feel more in control and are therefore less likely to become frustrated or to feel road rage. Drivers can also make better choices about which roads to take or call their place of work, their home or their daycare to let someone know if they will be late.

2010 OLYMPICS IN CANADA PRESENT OPPORTUNITIES FOR AMERICAN ARCHITECTURAL, CONSTRUCTION AND ENGINEERING TRADES

American firms wanting to do business in Canada in connection with the $10 billion projects for the 2010 Olympics are invited to attend a March 17 conference in Lynnwood. A guide will be distributed at the conference. More information can be obtained by visiting Snohomish County's WorkSource Web site at: www.worksourceonline.com.

Listen to weekly legislative updates on radio every Friday morning

Here is another reminder that Reps. Mike Armstrong and Cary Condotta and I get together every Friday morning to talk live with local radio stations about what is happening in the Legislature. These weekly radio shows allow listeners to learn more about the legislative session. (We also do a weekly call-in to the Wenatchee Valley Chamber of Commerce on Fridays from 7:30 to 8 a.m.) If you haven't listened to these radio updates and want to tune in, here is the Friday morning radio schedule:

7:15-7:30 a.m., KOHO (FM 101.1)

8 a.m.-8:30 a.m., KPQ (AM 560)

8:30 a.m.-9 a.m., KOZI (AM 1230/FM 93.5)

Watch legislative video updates on CNN Headline News

I also want to remind you to watch my legislative video updates on the CNN Headline News channel in the Wenatchee area. These updates are roughly five minutes long and are aired occasionally at the top of the hour daily. Reps. Armstrong and Condotta also have video updates on Headline News. Watching these updates is another good way to learn what is happening in Olympia.

That wraps up the news for this week. I appreciate the feedback on my previous updates. See you next week!
